

Abstract

The present invention is related to a video switching device, which comprises a digital imaging processing means, a digital image connecting means and a digital image display means to offer a high quality and resolution image.